

Laura Tattersall – Bio

My strengths:

I am an open and honest person, sometimes a little too honest (insert grimacing emoji here).

My loyalty, adaptability and organisational skills are my strengths, and I always have a listening ear for anyone – whether that be at work or in a personal capacity and I will always strive to help where possible.

I am also hilarious but unfortunately some people under appreciate this.

What working style works for me:

Guardian – I am methodical, detail orientated, structured and loyal. I work best under clear instruction with little to no ambiguity.

This is why I'm interested in cancer:

I appreciate the fact that I can impact change on cancer patients through my role having no clinical experience. My godmother died from Cancer when I was young, at an age where I didn't understand what it was and at a time when there was still so much negative attention / lack of knowledge around the illness and I love that we as an alliance have a positive impact on our population in their experience, but also their understanding of Cancer.

These are the groups and networks I am involved in:

I am a member of several local, regional and national PMO and data networks.

This is what is important to me:

Spending quality time with my family and friends.

What I am like when I am not at work:

I have a 2-year-old sidekick in the form of a Goldendoodle named Dave and although I have a lot of time for my friends and family, I also need time with Dave or just a good book or tv series to recharge my social battery.

For the last 5 years I have volunteered as a Rainbow Leader for the local Rainbows unit of the Girl Guides and I have recently joined a local women's cricket team.
